FOREWORD

Handbook of Academic Regulations and Degree Requirements

The Partido State University Graduate School commits itself to become a unit of advanced education handled by competent faculty dedicated to develop graduates who will maximize their expertise to improve the quality of life, especially of the marginalized sectors in their local communities. This commitment is deeply embedded in the rules, policies and procedures inscribed in this handbook.

I thank the faculty, staff and students of 2009, under the leadership of former Dean Dr. Josefina A. Borromeo, for taking the initiative to design, formulate and publish the first edition of this booklet. I thank particularly Ms. Nora E. Bacares, Program Director and faculty of education, for taking the lead this year of reviewing and reprinting this important document. Her efforts made possible the dissemination of updated information to students and faculty who need it most.

This reprinted version of the handbook contains academic and admission requirements, enrollment procedure, student's load, academic regulations, student services and facilities, financial information, research and defense requirements, among others. I invite everyone to read it from cover to cover so that we may appreciate the programs and processes observed in the Graduate School. A full knowledge and understanding of its provisions will help us make sound decisions on academic issues confronting us and devise plans on how to proceed with our scholastic activities.

May this handbook guide us all toward the achievement of our goals as a unit of the University to become a center of academic and research activities for responsive and competent professionals committed in the pursuit of truth and excellence.

BERNADETTE G. GUMBA, PHD, CPA
Dean, School of Graduate Studies and Research

Preface

This Handbook of Academic Regulations and Degree Requirements contain significant information that students in the School of Graduate Studies and Research of Partido State University should know. This will guide them in their quest for a higher level of learning.

This Handbook of Academic Regulations and Degree Requirements was first published in 2000 and was revisited in 2004 to accommodate the inclusion of important provisions and the new graduate program which is the Master in Public Affairs.

Through a series of consultations with the graduate students, faculty members, personnel, stakeholders and local officials, this handbook was made more comprehensive and published again in 2011 through Dr. Josefina A. Borromeo, the Dean of the School of Graduate Studies and Research and the concerted efforts of the graduate faculty. This was done to accommodate the revisions, inclusion of important provisions for graduate education and the addition of new programs such as the Doctor of Philosophy in Education major in English Language Education and Mathematics Education which were approved through BOR Resolution No. 08 s. 2007, Master in Public Affairs Option B or Non thesis program approved through BOR No.28 s. 2009 and Master in Business Administration approved through BOR No. 21 s. 2010 with Government Recognition No. 030 s. 2010.

Heartfelt thanks and appreciation are therefore accorded to all the people who have unselfishly shared their time and expertise in the preparation of this handbook.

MESSAGE

My warmest greetings!

I am quite delighted that even at an early development stage, the university has made its mark in various aspects of academic service delivery especially in the graduate level education. We have made it clear that our unwavering commitment to quality education holds true in all our endeavors. Graduate student population has grown significantly in the past five years – a manifestation that a large number of the local population believes in our quality instruction.

Growth alone, however, is not the sole indicator of a good academic reputation. Instituting consistent policies that will solidify quality academic standards is necessary. It is for this reason that this handbook was developed by the School of Graduate Studies. This will provide guidance to our current and aspiring graduate students on how they may work towards completing their respective degrees.

I hope that with this guidebook, our students will continue to strive for academic excellence and will not look at the contents of this handbook as a hindrance rather as means to facilitate the completion of their academic requirements.

PSU HISTORY

In June 1941, amid the threats of war, Partido High School opened its first classes after meeting the requirements of securing a site, enrolment of at least 200 students, and a building that could house the classes. The school, located in a riceland in the boundary of Goa-San Jose, and with a small population of 200 students in four sections, became a branch of Camarines Sur National High School (in Naga City). Students came from different towns and from diverse social classes in Partido.

The Pacific War temporarily halted the momentum and PHS reopened in 1945. The pioneer students were accelerated to second year a few months after classes resumed. Before the end of the school year, they were again accelerated to third year, they were called the "super students" for having been accelerated twice in a school year. Finally, the first batch of 120 students graduated in 1947.

In 1948, the school moved to its new site, a 10-hectare land donated by the civic-spirited citizens of Goa (The issue of a permanent school site cropped up and was settled when representatives from Bureau of Public Schools came and recommended a transfer.) First buildings were constructed through the pork barrel funds of then Congressman Sebastian Moll and from Parent-Teacher Association (PTA) funds.

In the latter part of 1970, the PTA and Municipal Council of Goa sought Congressman Felix Fuentebella's assistance to file a bill in Congress for the conversion of Partido High School to Partido National High School. Unfortunately, martial law was declared in 1972.

It was only in 1974 when Partido National High School became operative. It was this time that the school entered its "Golden Era" when it dominated almost all academic, athletic and cultural competitions. It garnered plums in both regional and national secondary press conferences.

In 1974, the Municipal Council of San Jose established the Salogon Barangay High School with Dr. Seneca Z. Tacurda as its first principal, pursuant to Batas Pamabansa Blg. 406 approved on June 10, 1983 sponsored by then Assemblyman Arnulfo "Noli" Fuentebella with its new status as a national vocational school. It was converted into San Jose Fisheries School which was a concept of civic-oriented citizens of the "Rangas Sector" including Barangay Tagas which is by then overflowing with bangus fry. Among them was Clemente Peña, a public school teacher from Barangay Ponglon who is instrumental in the acquisition of the school site of the San Jose Fisheries School, would later on become the Partido State University-Salogon Campus.

In 1977, another barangay high school was born in the town of San Jose, Camarines Sur. Situated in Barangay Del Carmen and San Juan, San Jose Camarines Sur. In 1987, This Barangay High School acquired its status as San Jose Nationalized High School when the new government gave budgetary priority to education as a consequence of the newly ratified 1987 Philippine Constitution.

December 2, 1994, pursuant to Republic Act No. 7828, authored by Congressman Arnulfo P. Fuentebella, the Caramoan Vocational-Technical School (CVTS) was created. Now the Partido State University-Caramoan Campus, it was organized under the leadership of the late Manuel dela Torre. Dr. Vicente Lleno became its first Administrator.

March 29, 1995, Republic Act No. 7958 was signed into law which signalled the creation of Tinambac Polytechnic Institute (TPI) – through the initiative of Cong. Arnulfo P. Fuentebella and was organized by Dr. Gregilda Pan before its first Superintendent, Dr. Fortuno P. Villanueva, took over. TPI would later on become PSU-Tinambac.

In March 30, 1995 by virtue of Republic Act No.7972 through the efforts of Hon. Congressman Arnulfo P. Fuentebella, San Jose Nationalized High School was converted to San Jose Polytechnic Institute (SJPI) with Dr. Marie Jane Pacamarra as the first administrator of SJPI. It is now the Partido State University-San Jose Campus.

In March 14, 1998, pursuant to Republic Act No. 8594, Governor Mariano Fuentebella Memorial Fisheries School was converted to Governor Mariano Fuentebella College of Fisheries (GMFMCF). GMFMCF was to become the Partido State University-Sagñay Campus with Dr. Pedro V. Vargas as its first administrator. This fisheries school in 1976, was created because of the request of the late Superintendent Carlos Borjal of Camarines Sur National College of Arts & Trades (in Naga City) from the Ministry of Education to transfer Goa High School to Barangay Nato, Sagñay, Camarines Sur and was acted upon favorably in 1977.

In Novermber 27, 1997, Republic Act No.8417, created the Lagonoy Fishery School (LFS), now the Partido State University-Lagonoy Campus, which is situated in the northern part of Lagonoy, Barangay Cabotonan. Ms. Trinidad Soltes was its administrator since its existence in 1977.

The momentum of Partido National High School was sustained by by Congressman Arnulfo P. Fuentebella in 1986, when, through his representation, Partido National High School was converted into Partido State College by virtue of Presidential Drafted by Atty. Manuel M. Lazaro, Presidential Legal Adviser of former President FM. Cong. Noli Fuentebella donated the "blue Pierre Cardin" pen which President FM used to sign the decree.

The journey towards the creation of PSU was eventful. Birthing pain was tough. There was an attempt for its integration with a school in Rinconada area. All because having a state university in ones town is a distinct privilege and an esteem badge of honor. The different stakeholders in the province of Camarines Sur clamored for the conversion of Partido State College, together with the six other schools/colleges in the district, into state university.

Republic Act No. 9029, March 5, 2001 finally, the greatest boon came to Partidonians when a bill authored by speaker Arnulfo P. Fuentebella was signed into law by President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo on March 5, 2001 creating Partido State University.

Brief History and Legal Basis of the PSU School of Graduate Studies and Research

On March 19, 1998, the first Master's Program of the University was approved through Board Resolution No. 17, s. 1998 with the following majors: English, Mathematics, and Science Education, thus, the birth of PSU Graduate School. The program was under the supervision of the Dean of the College of Education together with the High School Department, BSED, BEED and SPED Programs.

To answer the needs of the community, the program Master in Public Affairs (MPAF) major in Local Governance was offered through the mandate of the Academic Council Resolution No. 6, s. 2000 and Board Resolution No. 26, s. 2000.

Due to the need and consistent clamor for other graduate programs, the MPAF (Non-thesis Program) was proposed and finally approved through BOR Resolution No. 28 s. 2009.

As an institution of higher learning and to live up to its mission, the programs Doctor of Philosophy major in English Language Education and Mathematics Education were proposed and finally approved by the Board of Regents through its Board Resolution No. 08, s. 2007 during its 24th BOR meeting held at Sorsogon State College, Sorsogon City. It was implemented during the first semester of academic year 2007-2008.

In 2009, the Administrative Council approved its Conversion to School of Graduate Studies and Research. At present, it is a distinct unit of the university named Partido State University School of Graduate Studies and Research and is headed by a Dean. It boasts of two Post graduate courses with two majors (Doctor of Philosophy major in English Language Education and Mathematics Education) and three graduate courses (Master of Arts in Education (MAED) major in English, Mathematics, Science and Instructional Management; Master in Public Affairs (MPAf) major in Local Governance and Development and Master in Business Administration (MBA).

The Graduate School of the university is the only public HEI in the Bicol region offering Doctor of Philosophy major in English Language Education and one of the two public HEI's offering Doctor of Philosophy major in Mathematics Education.

PARTIDO STATE UNIVERSITY HYMN

Lyrics and Music by: Fr. Lorenzo Juan B. Garcia, III

Over majestic Isarog shines the light of dawn,
Lift high your head, our spirits moving on,
With pride in our hearts we love to shout your name,
Partido State University forever we'll proclaim.

To God and Country we pray is our duty,
Our never ending service to humanity;
Let's be true. Let's be worthy
Partido State University our true and only way.

Chorus:

PARTIDO STATE UNIVERSITY
We are our pledge to you'
We promise we'll be true
Our Alma Mater dear
Forever we will hear,

PARTIDO STATE UNIVERSITY
Our loyalty forever true
(Repeat Chorus)

PARTIDO STATE UNIVERSITY
Our loyalty forever true.
